A MESSAGE FROM LAUREL BRYANT, BOARD CHAIR:

Welcome to the inaugural edition of the Annual Report of the Center for the Arts at Kayenta (the Center). This is the first of what we intend to not only be an annual accounting of numbers and tracking of impacts, but also to serve as a strategic document for educating and building relationships and awareness at the various levels of government, key businesses and foundations, as well as the communities of greater southern Utah.

In addition to reflecting back on the past season, we hope this document will provide a format to inspire a look forward—not only toward the next season, but to what is possible for the future of Kayenta as an artistic destination and sanctuary for creativity and artistic endeavors.

Briefly, I joined the Kayenta Arts Foundation (KAF) in the summer of 2022, just prior to Miranda being hired as the Executive Director of the Center. We came aboard following the choppy waters of the COVID pandemic when the Board was the day-to-day administrative body. As Chair since 2023—guided by current and former Board members and working with Miranda—I have had the privilege to help transition the Board away from administration and toward a more strategic body structured around and focused on providing oversight and longterm financial sustainability. From increasing annual financial planning, grant contributions, event income and business sponsorships, to supporting a workplace of professionally skilled employees who make a living wage—the Board is actively positioning the Center as an important contributor to the cultural health and economic vitality of southern Utah.

Looking forward, as you may know, artistic entities around the country are facing the unprecedented challenge of a national withdrawal and cancellation of financial support. I hope we have positioned the KAF Board to help the Center navigate these new choppy waters. However, in keeping with the can-do attitude of Kayenta residents that established KAF and the Center, your thoughts about our efforts are always welcome — along with your contribution$ of course!

Thanks for your attention and your support. We would not be here without you.

Sincerely,

Laurel G. Bryant, Chair
Kayenta Arts Foundation.

MISSION STATEMENT:

The Kayenta Arts Foundation was incorporated in February 2011, and granted the status of a 501 (c) (3) tax-exempt charitable organization in September 2011.

Kayenta Arts Foundation's mission is to develop and create an environment that fosters artistic endeavors for educational and cultural enrichment purposes. Our vision is to become Southern Utah's premier venue for professional quality, multi-disciplinary performing arts in an intimate space, fostering awareness, appreciation, education, and enjoyment of diverse artistic forms and ideas.

The Center for the Arts at Kayenta (CFAK) was constructed with the love, labor, and funds of the Kayenta community, under the management of Kayenta Arts Foundation. Today, CFAK produces and presents over 50 events annually, with a total of approximately 120 individual performances, across the artistic disciplines of theater, music, dance, storytelling, and humanities-based lectures. We serve audiences throughout Washington County, and across the American SouthWest.

LOOKING BACK: A NOTE FROM EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR MIRANDA WRIGHT

As I reflect on my first three years with Kayenta Arts Foundation, beginning with the 2022/2023 season, I am struck by how much has changed—and how much possibility now lies before us. These three years have been a time of laying groundwork: increasing our revenue by 33%, strengthening our operations, and assembling a team of extraordinary staff members whose passion and creativity fuel everything we do.

We have been reimagining what the arts in Kayenta can be. By transforming our programming to align with nationally recognized arts centers, we have expanded not only the caliber of the work we present, but also the impact we can have on artists, audiences, and our community.

Reflecting back on our 2024/2025 season, we are beginning to see the fruits of this labor. The shifts and growth of the past three years are no longer just plans or promises—they are becoming lived realities. We are welcoming exceptional national and international artists from across the disciplines of theater, music, and dance, and are attracting support from major national foundations, including receiving the very first direct grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to be awarded in Washington County.

This year's program reflected Kayenta's values of creativity and innovation, community and collaboration, and sustainability and stewardship. We are tracing the long history in Kayenta as a place where innovation thrives, where artists are supported to take bold creative risks, and where audiences come to be challenged, inspired, and connected.

This is only the beginning. With momentum building and a community that believes in the power of the arts, I am more confident than ever that we will continue to grow into a cultural home that resonates far beyond our walls.

This progress is possible because of the commitment of our supporters, partners, and community. Thank you for standing with us as we continue to shape Kayenta into a cultural home that reflects the power and potential of the arts.

With gratitude,

Miranda Wright, Executive Director

LAND ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The Center for the Arts at Kayenta wishes to acknowledge and honor the Indigenous communities of this region as original stewards and inhabitants of this land. We recognize that we are situated on the traditional lands of the Southern Paiute People, and wish to pay respect to the Shivwits Band of the Paiute Tribe. We acknowledge that these lands have deeply rooted spiritual, cultural, and historical significance to the Southern Paiutes, and we pledge to actively seek opportunities to study, learn, work, and build community through arts and culture.

We invite our audiences to join us in this effort by learning more about the Shivwits Band's history and culture at Shivwits.org, and the larger Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah at PITU.gov.

2024-2025 HIGHLIGHTS

First Fridays at Kayenta

First Fridays at Kayenta began as an intimate monthly series featuring live jazz music, screenings from DOCUTAH, and a relaxed outdoor setting under the red cliffs of Ivins, Utah. While attendance has been modest, the program has laid a strong foundation for growth, offering a unique platform to connect community members with local artists and cultivate a welcoming monthly tradition within the Kayenta Art Village.

Kayenta New Play Lab

The Kayenta New Play Lab has emerged as one of our most impactful programs, providing playwrights with the time, space, and professional support to develop new works for the stage. By pairing writers with directors, actors, and dramaturgs, the Lab fosters a collaborative environment where writers from across the Western states can refine their scripts and bring bold new stories to life. In the second year of the New Play Lab, we supported six playwrights, culminating in staged readings that invite audience feedback and spark meaningful conversations. This initiative not only elevates the creative process for artists but also positions the Center for the Arts at Kayenta as a champion of new works in the performing arts, contributing to the national theater landscape while deeply engaging our local community.

This year, we also produced a workshop production of The Magician's Sister, by Jami Brandli, which was selected by audiences during our 2023 Kayenta New Play Lab.

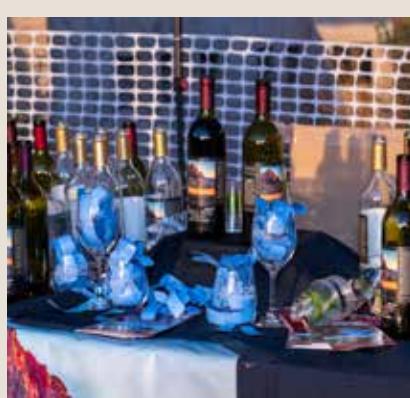

Taste of the Town at Kayenta

The first-ever Taste of the Town at Kayenta was a resounding success, selling out its debut event and drawing enthusiastic crowds to experience the rich flavors of our region. Partnering with more than a dozen new food and wine vendors, the event not only delighted attendees with an unforgettable culinary experience but also forged lasting relationships between the Center for the Arts at Kayenta and local businesses. This lively gathering showcased the Art Village as a destination where culture, community, and cuisine intersect—laying the groundwork for an annual tradition that strengthens both our artistic mission and our community connections.

Expanded Music Programming

This season, the Center for the Arts at Kayenta expanded its music offerings with a refreshed focus on world music, bringing globally inspired artistry to the red cliffs of Ivins. Highlights included the evocative tango traditions of the Alejandro Brittes Trio, the jazz-infused rhythms of the Delbert Anderson Quartet, and the high-energy, all-female ensemble Las Guaracheras, whose performance celebrated Afro-Latin roots. Together, these concerts introduced audiences to diverse musical traditions, fostered cultural exchange, and reaffirmed Kayenta's commitment to presenting dynamic, boundary-crossing performances that enrich the community's artistic experience.

Alejandro Brittes Trio

The internationally renowned accordionist Alejandro Brittes and his ensemble transported audiences with the soulful rhythms of Argentine tango and chamamé, blending tradition with contemporary artistry. Their performance offered a rare cultural experience for Southern Utah audiences.

Delbert Anderson Quartet

Known for their innovative fusion of jazz and Native American music, the Delbert Anderson Quartet captivated listeners with original compositions that honored Diné heritage while pushing creative boundaries in modern jazz.

Las Guaracheras

This electrifying, all-female ensemble brought the spirit of Afro-Latin music to Kayenta with irresistible percussion, vocals, and dance. Their high-energy performance celebrated diversity and left the audience on their feet.

National Theater Project & National Dance Project

Through the support of the National Theater Project and National Dance Project, the Center for the Arts at Kayenta proudly presented a series of groundbreaking works that brought nationally recognized artists to our community. Highlights included Yvonne Montoya's Stories from Home, a moving dance work rooted in Latinx traditions of the Southwest; Theater Mitu's Utopian Hotline, an immersive installation blending theater and technology to imagine new futures; and Dan Froot & Company's Arms Around America, a theatrical exploration of contemporary family life across the country. These presentations not only offered Southern Utah audiences rare access to innovative, nationally touring performances but also reinforced Kayenta's role as a platform for bold, socially resonant art that sparks dialogue and connection.

Yvonne Montoya: Stories from Home

This powerful dance work illuminated the stories of Latinx families in the American Southwest, blending movement, music, and personal narratives. Montoya's performance brought underrepresented voices to the stage and invited audiences to reflect on cultural heritage and identity.

Theater Mitu: Utopian Hotline

An innovative fusion of theater, installation, and sound, Utopian Hotline transformed Kayenta into a space of collective imagination. Audience members contributed their own hopes for the future, weaving them into a participatory artistic experience that blurred the line between performance and community dialogue.

Dan Froot & Company: Arms Around America

This theatrical work wove together stories from families across the country whose lives have been shaped by guns and gun rights. Through humor, tenderness, and candid storytelling, the piece opened space for dialogue on one of America's most pressing and polarizing issues, inviting audiences to consider the human experiences behind the headlines.

Crossing Disciplines

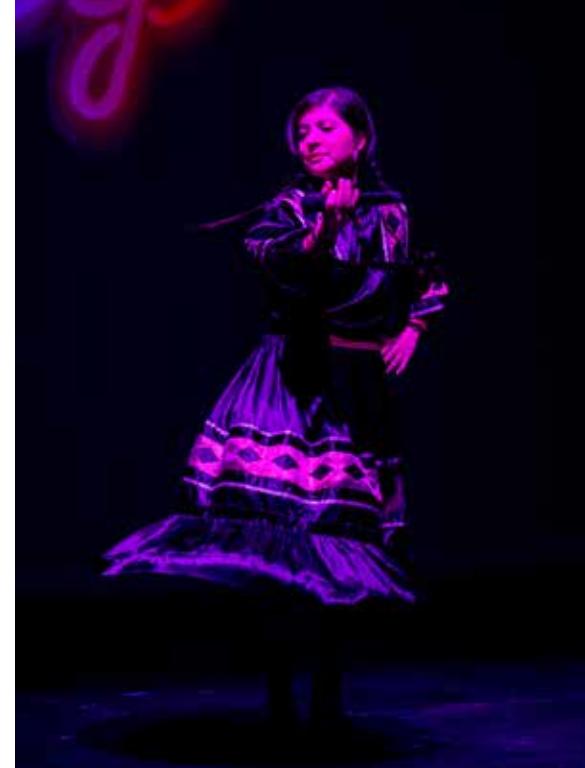

This year, the Center for the Arts at Kayenta presented a dynamic group of performances that defied traditional disciplinary boundaries and invited audiences to experience the performing arts in new ways.

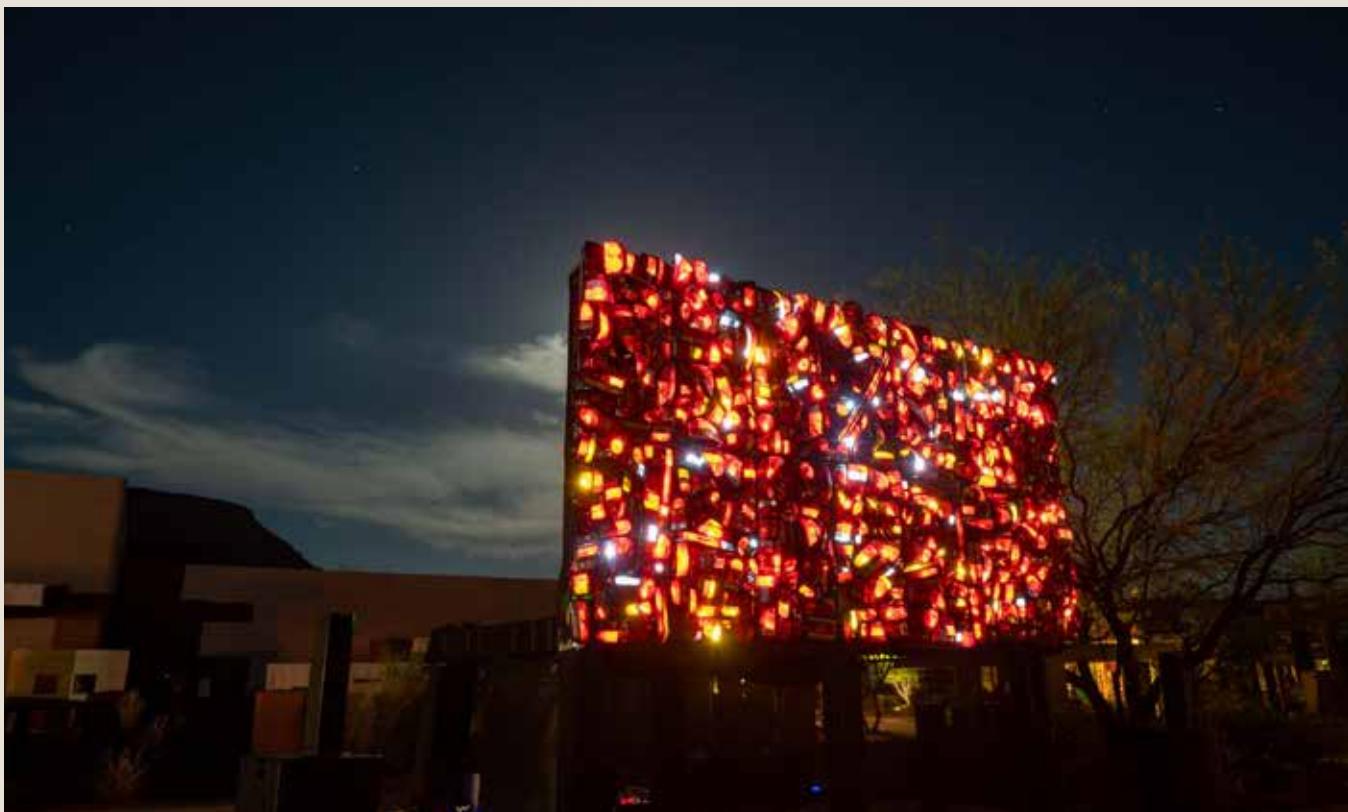

Miwa Matreyek combined animation and live performance to create visually stunning digital landscapes layered with human presence.

Created by Dutch collective Touki Delphine, FIREBIRD was a spellbinding fusion of installation and live music, in which glowing sculptures, kinetic light, and layered soundscapes transformed the stage into an otherworldly environment that enveloped the audience in both sight and sound.

Elisa Harkins' Wampum / blended Indigenous traditions with contemporary performance, offering a poignant exploration of culture and identity.

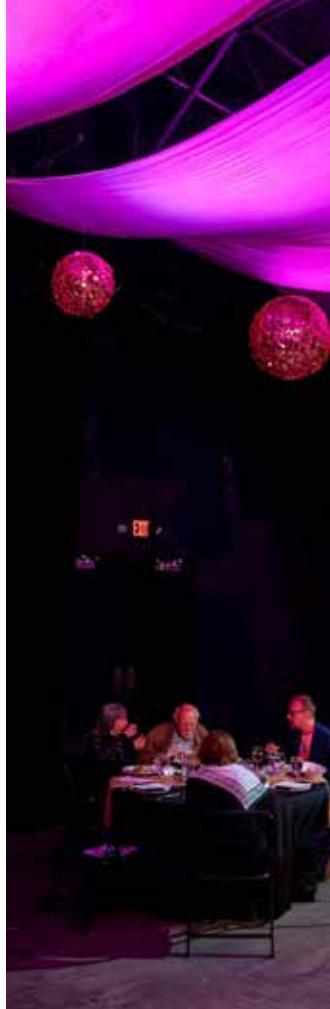

Together, these works exemplified Kayenta's commitment to presenting bold, innovative artistry that expands how audiences engage with performance.

Kayenta Arts Foundation Annual Gala

The Kayenta Arts Foundation Annual Gala was a highlight of the year, bringing together our most dedicated supporters for an evening of celebration and community. Within the theme of 'Desert Blooms: Art and Resilience,' guests enjoyed an elegant night of performances, fine dining, and connection. Most notably, the event achieved record-breaking success through spirited paddle raises, demonstrating the extraordinary generosity of our community. The funds raised will directly support the Center for the Arts at Kayenta's future programming.

BE A PART OF OUR GROWTH

At the Kayenta Arts Foundation, we are building on that legacy with a commitment to providing bold, thought-provoking, and professionally produced arts experiences—right here in Ivins. As one of the region's only nonprofit arts organizations offering year-round theater, music, lectures, exhibitions, and festivals, we serve a diverse and growing audience seeking meaningful, mature, and high-quality cultural programming.

This isn't just about putting on a show. It's about creating a place for ideas to be shared, voices to be heard, and community to be formed—through the power of the arts.

What our members are saying:

"As a theatre scholar, I feel you are the only venue in Southern Utah consistently presenting works that are compelling and artistically complex."

"My husband and I appreciate CFAK for offering high-quality entertainment at reasonable prices, and for bringing new material to our area. It's great not to have to drive to Vegas to see great theater!"

"Please continue to offer challenging and creative art, so that it appeals to all ages."

"Please understand that Kayenta is more of an intimate setting than other venues in St. George. The theater gives the feeling that you are privileged to be in someone's salon listening to beautiful music or watching a wonderful art film."

"The variety of offerings at Kayenta is eclectic and that serves a wide audience."

Why Your Support Matters

Across the country, public funding for the arts is under threat. Cultural institutions are being asked to do more with less, while facing pressure to water down content or shift priorities away from thoughtful, transformative work.

At Kayenta, we are resisting that trend.

We believe deeply that the arts:

Fuel curiosity and dialogue

Bridge divides and foster understanding

Provide beauty, insight, and connection in turbulent times

But we can't do it without you.

What Your Gift Supports

Every dollar you give helps us bring:

Theater that speaks to today's world—relevant, intelligent, emotionally rich, and professionally staged.

Music that moves and inspires—classical, jazz, folk, and contemporary genres performed by skilled artists in an intimate setting.

Visual arts and cultural festivals that spotlight local talent, celebrate regional identity, and draw visitors to our creative community.

Lectures and educational programs exploring science, history, art, and culture—all designed to stretch minds and spark conversation.

Inclusive access to the arts, keeping ticket prices reasonable, inviting new voices in, and making sure no one is left out.

Kayenta's audiences are growing more engaged, more diverse, and more eager for content that speaks to their values—not just entertainment, but depth. As Southern Utah evolves, so must its cultural institutions.

With diminishing national support for arts agencies, local giving is more important than ever. If we want the arts to remain vibrant, relevant, and accessible in our region, we need community members like you to stand with us.

Join Us—Invest in Art that Matters

The Kayenta Arts Foundation isn't just a venue—it's a creative sanctuary. A place where challenging ideas are welcome, where artists are supported, and where audiences are trusted to engage with complex, beautiful, and diverse expressions of the human experience.

We invite you to be part of this mission.

Your support sustains the arts in Southern Utah.

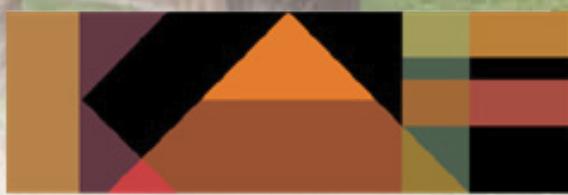

Your gift ensures a vibrant, inclusive cultural future.

Together, let's keep the arts alive—right here, where they belong.
